What: Juneau Vulnerability Index Registry Week

Where: Various Juneau Locations, beginning downtown

When: September 29-30, 2015 Who: You!

Homelessness is an issue here in Juneau. However closely it touches us, the suffering of our neighbors is the suffering of our community. In order to have the most accurate picture of homelessness in Juneau, while simultaneously identifying our citizens who are most in need, a second Vulnerability Survey will be conducted. Following the national model of the 100,000 Homes Campaign, Juneau will conduct its second Vulnerability Index Survey to clarify the need and identify our most vulnerable citizens.

During the survey, teams of volunteers will go out into the community to connect with Juneau's homeless population wherever they reside. Our goal will be to provide desired small scale help to those we encounter, and to compile the freely given survey information into a databank that will fill in and extend what we know about those living in Juneau without a home. Volunteers should be over 18, and can be of any gender or profession. All you need is compassion, the ability to help conduct surveys for three mornings rain or shine, and an alarm clock.

Join the effort, September 29-30th here in Juneau:

Monday September 21: Volunteer Training from 5:00-8:00pm

Tuesday and Wednesday, September 29-30: Survey Rollout, 4:30am-8:30am

Thursday, October 1 : Final Surveys 6:00am-8:30am (optional)

Monday, November 2nd Results Discussion and Volunteer Appreciation Lunch
12-1PM, at TGH (optional)

Across the country citizens like us have made great strides in the fight against homelessness, lessening the suffering of our fellow community members. The results are striking: in 114 cities across America thousands have already been housed and helped, and those involved in the effort have found it to be an overwhelmingly positive, and powerful, experience. Join us.
