PROCEEDINGS

THE COURT: Good morning, everybody. This is Judge Shannon. I understand from the operator that everybody is on the line this morning. We've had some difficulty with this before, so I'm just going ask -- I can see a number of parties today. I would just ask generally, can everybody see me? I'm in the courtroom in Wilmington. Can you folks see me?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: We can see you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Great. All right, thanks.

This is a telephonic first-day hearing and a video first-day hearing in the matter of Ravn Air Group, R-A-V-N, which is Case Number 20-10755. Before we get going, I would again express, as I think I have pretty consistently, my appreciation to everybody for their flexibility in trying to deal with the extraordinary circumstances that we're all facing, but nevertheless still carrying out the Court's mission for stakeholders and for your respective clients.

In addition, I'm sure everybody on the phone is certainly a teleconference veteran, and now we're becoming videoconference veterans. I want to assure every party that any party that wishes to be heard will have an opportunity to be heard. It is a little bit cumbersome, but it's been working pretty well. But I'll just ask everybody for their patience in advance.

In addition, I would like to commend counsel -- I think it's Ms. Guilfoyle and her colleagues -- for really doing a terrific job of sharing the materials with the Court in advance. I have received blacklines that make life a lot easier. And so I think I have a pretty good understanding of where everybody is on the open issues that they've got. And it seemed like most of the issues have been ironed out, and that's certainly welcome news.

But before we move any further, I'm looking at my video and I do not see Mr. Fox. Mr. Fox, you're certainly welcome to participate by phone if you're not on the video, but I want to make sure the U.S. Trustee is represented in this morning's hearing.

MR. FOX: Good morning, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Tim Fox on behalf of the United States Trustee.

As I advised the debtors, when the video option was put forward, our IT department has trouble interfacing with outside-generated conference calls. I think some of my colleagues have been more successful than others. I tried to test it yesterday and it appeared like it would work, and now I continue to get error messages indicating that the program cannot connect me to audio-video presentations. And it's booted me out of the call a couple of times. And I think, unfortunately, I won't be able to start my video today, but I am here on phone and will be able to participate telephonically. And I think, thankfully, we've been able to work through the majority of our issues, so the absence of my video, hopefully, won't be too detrimental to today's proceedings.

THE COURT: Great. I appreciate that. And obviously, you're welcome to participate by teleconference. I had heard from some of my colleagues that your office is having some difficulty. I think part of it may just be a policy issue as well as being an IT issue, but hopefully that'll get sorted out as we continue to work through this. But again, I appreciate your engagement with the U.S. Trustee. It's very -- or with the debtors. It's very clear to me that you have managed that process pretty effectively. And I'll look forward to hearing from everybody this morning.

With that, I see Mr. Keller. It is good to see you again, Mr. Keller. And the podium is yours

MR. KELLER: Thank you, Your Honor. And very nice to see you again. Just for the record; Tobias Keller of Keller Benvenutti Kim, representing the debtors, Ravn Air Group, Ravn Air (sic) Holdings, LLC, JJM, Inc., HoTH, Inc., Peninsula Aviation Services, Inc., Corvus Airlines, Frontier Flying Services (sic), and Hageland Aviation Services. With you remotely is the debtors' CFO, John Mannion.

John, if you could indicate -- just give us a wave there on the Skype (ph.) so that the judge can see you.

THE COURT: Very good. I do have Mr. -- I have Mr.

Mannion on the screen. Great.

MR. KELLER: Wonderful. I also believe that on the conference line is our CEO, Dave Pflieger, and several of our directors, including our independent directors, Richard Nevens (ph.) and Jim Decker (ph.). Also on video is my partner, Jane Kim, who will be speaking to a number of the issues on today's agenda.

THE COURT: Great.

MR. KELLER: With Your Honor's consent, I'd like to give a brief description of the debtors, the reason that bring (sic) us before Your Honor, and our expectations of how the cases will be resolved.

THE COURT: That sounds good.

MR. KELLER: After that, I'm going to ask -- after that, I'm going to ask Ms. Guilfoyle to get the joint administration, claims agent addressed. And then with your leave, though it's last on the agenda, I'd like to take the DIP-financing motion first.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. KELLER: After that, I think Ms. -- great.

So, thank you. Ravn Air Group is a collection of several air-transportation businesses in Alaska that were consolidated under the Ravn masthead. Immediately before the filing, there were three core businesses: Ravn Alaska, Penair, and Ravn Connect. The first two are what we call Part 121 carriers, indicating that they flew larger passenger planes, 1 while RavnAir Connect was a, quote, "Part 135" carrier, running 2 smaller airplanes to over 110 smaller Alaskan communities. 3 4 One of the unique features of the Alaskan terrain is that the state is massive but connected by very few highways. 5 6 As a result, airplane travel is of central importance to 7 providing mail, food, and supplies for rural villages, bringing medicine to their residents, and taking residents to medical 8 treatment when necessary, and getting businesspeople and 9 10 workers to various industries throughout Alaska, including oil and gas, commercial fishing, and defense. 11 12 THE COURT: Mr. Keller --13 MR. KELLER: To give Your --14 THE COURT: -- Judge Shannon. I just --15 MR. KELLER: Yes. THE COURT: -- have to comment. And it's difficult to 16 17 have a colloquy on the teleconference, so I'll keep it short. But I did read carefully Mr. Mannion's declaration. 19 And, Mr. Mannion, I think it's 6:30 in the morning there, so I do apologize for that. 20 21 MR. MANNION: Not at all, Your Honor. 22 THE COURT: What really struck me is the concept. guess I had known about the need for air travel in Alaska and 23 24 the idea that there are places where there aren't roads. But the idea that there are large towns and even cities that ultimately don't have a road out of them is just a -- it's almost like a science-fiction proposition. I mean, it's hard to wrap my head around that in a place the size of Delaware.

MR. KELLER: That's -- that is in fact the case. And Ravn is a major player. In 2019, our revenues exceeded 200 million dollars, passenger-servicing providing the largest revenue stream, slightly over half, followed by mail and bypass mail, which is about a quarter; and then charter and freight, which took up about twenty percent as well. Before the shutdown of its operations, Ravn operated 72 aircraft at 21 hub airports and 73 facilities, serving a total of 115 destinations in Alaska, with up 400 daily flights.

So as Your Honor observes, Ravn has been a significant and critical part of Alaska's economy but also the infrastructure. And one of the issues that has arisen that we are trying to get resolved but may have to come back before Your Honor is, in fact -- it was deemed so critical to one small town, Barrow, that it issued an order purporting to commandeer Ravn's assets at its location, an issue that we hope to resolve in short order without having to come before Your Honor. But with that said, we are looking for a quick resolution of the Barrow situation. We may have to return to Your Honor on short notice if we can't get it addressed.

THE COURT: I'll be here.

MR. KELLER: In any event, because of Alaska's harsh winter climate, the debtors' businesses are highly seasonal. Their operations tend to consume cash during the last and first quarters of the year, and they generate excess cash during the second and third quarters. Of course, this year's an exception. The COVID pandemic hit Alaska squarely in the middle of last month, and the group experienced an eighty- to ninety-percent decrease in passenger revenue in all three of its airlines, as compared to historical results. So it was immediately apparent that Ravn isn't going to be generating cash during this busy period and it was going to need a cash infusion immediately.

When it was evident that it was not going to be able to pay for fuel and necessities or make future payrolls, it made a painful decision over the weekend to permanent -- or not permanent; to temporarily shut down its operations and lay off a substantial majority of its employees.

I don't think I need to belabor the point that capital is hard to come by in this environment. Ravn has submitted applications for loans and grants under the CARES Act. It's also sought external debt capital and it's engaged with its sponsors for equity infusions. To this point, it could not procure capital outside of bankruptcy, notwithstanding its strong market position, its established business, in large part because, like the rest of us, it cannot tell its investors when the pandemic will recede and bookings will return.

At this point, all that Ravn could secure was the DIP-financing package that gives it a brief runway during which it must prepare for an orderly liquidation if nothing else appears on the horizon. We do have room for hope. Ravn is actively working with government officials to secure funding. And if funding were obtained, we may be able to come up with a restructuring or at least parts -- a sale of parts of its businesses.

We will keep Your Honor apprised of any positive developments but, in the absence of relief soon, we will unhappily but necessarily -- we will be put in a position where we will be presenting Your Honor with a liquidating plan that will allow the company to realize an orderly liquidation and a value for its assets, rather than the forced fire-sale process that would otherwise follow.

Your Honor, that's the summary. And I'd be pleased to entertain any questions Your Honor has. Otherwise, I'd propose that we proceed to the agenda.

THE COURT: I only have one or two questions, and they may not be able to be answered right now. I understand the challenges that the company faced and the circumstances that required the decision, the sort of the spearpoint decision, to file. Obviously, it's an unprecedented economic environment, but concerns with respect to being able to make payroll and to pay for fuel and other items that are being ordered by the company, at least as far as I understand, drove the timing of the debtors' filings for purposes of today. In addition, I don't think any bankruptcy professional or finance professional is unaware of the loan provisions of the CARES Act. My guess is that that will require some machinery and a little bit of time to get through.

I would ask, given the description, which I certainly take at face value and it certainly seems plausible, that this company is a central part of the infrastructure of Alaska, has the debtor been in touch with authorities in Alaska, either city or state, in order to determine whether or not there may be some support in that respect?

MR. KELLER: There have been multiple outreaches both with federal officials -- and to that point, I should note that particularly Sens. Sullivan and Murkowski have been very aware of and, frankly, sympathetic to us. We understand that they have been advocating Ravn's position in the federal system, with Department of Treasury. There've also been a number of outreaches to state officials, and those outreaches continue, for the reason that Your Honor has implied, which is, if Ravn isn't there to provide essential services, we need to cooperate with the local authorities to make sure that, if need be, our runways and facilities can be subleased so that others can get in planes and get supplies.

So there is a humanitarian aspect that we are fully aware of and working with authorities on. We are also hoping that -- as the reality of where Ravn stands sets in, that perhaps, in addition to (indiscernible), there will be other opportunities to come up with something more robust, an orderly liquidation.

THE COURT: Okay. All right, I understand. I think you've answered the questions that I have. Before we go any further, I would just touch base with the Office of the United States Trustee.

Mr. Fox, has your office had any opportunity to consider scheduling a formation meeting?

MR. FOX: Good morning again, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Tim Fox on behalf of the United States Trustee.

With the circumstances we're currently facing, we have not yet determined a date for the formation of a committee. I think, at the conclusion or at least when we get to the first item that requires the scheduling of a final hearing with respect to today's first-day matters, that'll provide insight as to what our outside date is and allow my office to work back from that to figure out a time line that works.

It's not anticipated that we'll conduct any in-person meeting. We will send out our solicitation as promptly as possible after today's proceedings, and then my office will touch base with creditors that are interested and file a notice of appointment on the docket should there be sufficient interest, and allow the committee members to then set about their business and get up and running as quickly as possible.

But unfortunately, we won't have a date certain by which the committee will be formed. But it's my expectation and my hope that we are able to form a committee sufficiently in advance of the second-day hearing with respect to the final DIP financing and other motions where the committee should have an opportunity to weigh in.

THE COURT: Okay. Let's take care of, if we can, just at least one or two other pieces of housekeeping, for purposes of today's hearing. First, I do note that in the amended agenda that was submitted, a number of the status lines reflect that the debtor has considered and accepted whatever modifications or revisions your office has requested, so that you're okay with the entry of the order.

The way that I'm going to deal with this, rather than ask you to come off mute and jump on every time, is, if a matter is presented that you don't have any -- that I don't hear from you, I'm going to assume the U.S. Trustee is okay with that order, which I think is pretty close to how we usually operate. And then if there is an issue with respect to any particular order or request for relief, simply sing out and I'll be happy to hear from you.

And obviously, I'd hear from any other party that

1 wishes to be heard.

Second, it might make sense, right out of the gate, to do a little bit of scheduling so that we can identify a second-day hearing. So today is the 7th of April. And I would assume that this hearing will be videoconferenced again if we're in that time line. I believe Judge Sontchi's entered an order further providing that nonessential hearings are adjourned and basically we're operating by video and audio. So that gives you a lot of flexibility.

Mr. Keller, have you given thoughts to a date or a time? I've got some flexibility in my calendar.

MR. KELLER: Your Honor, given the requirement -- the time requirements, I think we're looking at something the week of April 26. And I think, knowing what works on Your Honor's calendar, at this point I don't think Monday gets us quite enough time, so perhaps -- I'm looking right now. Perhaps --

THE COURT: How about Wednesday the 29th? Does Wednesday the 29th work?

MR. KELLER: Wednesday the 29th is good. And if we could -- if we could either use a morning time or later in the afternoon, that would be ideal.

THE COURT: Can we do 11 a.m.?

MR. KELLER: I think that would work perfectly, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. So you're going to have a second-day hearing scheduled for the 29th. Any objection deadlines would be consistent with our local rules. You guys can sort that out. And Mr. Fox can work backward from that for figuring out what may work for a virtual committee-formation meeting.

And again, folks, I really have to commend the professionals in all of the cases that are pending before me.

People have been remarkably cooperative, for a large collection of bankruptcy lawyers, and I appreciate it.

And so to the extent that there's a committee formed, you'll work with them with respect to dates and deadlines and the mechanics of the process. But that date on the 29th will give you a date to shoot for. I'd be happy to hear second-day matters, retentions, the usual stuff.

You mentioned, Mr. Keller, that there're issues potentially, with at least one stakeholder, that may result in the need for emergency proceedings. The way we're viewing it is the court is open. And so you can get in touch with my chambers through Ms. Bello and Ms. Walker. And your Delaware counsel can certainly help with that. But if we need to get on the phone or get on for a video -- we're basically trying to operate, as close as we possibly can, the business as usual.

Again, it would be my hope that these matters can be successfully resolved, at least for the interim period. They seem to be -- a lot of these are real business issues more than pure legal issues. But I'll leave that to the judgment of the parties. And if there's a need for assistance, we're here.

And that's, I guess, the easiest way to approach it.

With that, I think I'd be prepared to move forward.

MR. KELLER: Thank you, Your Honor. I do want to echo

Your Honor's comments. We have found working with all the

Your Honor's comments. We have found working with all the professionals in this extraordinary environment to be very businesslike. We have sought, and gotten solutions to, pretty much everything we've wanted. And we have relied heavily on our local counsel at Blank Rome, who, as Your Honor notes, worked through all hours of the note to make sure that we were properly prepared for today.

THE COURT: Right. No, no, and I think we're in good shape.

MR. KELLER: With that, I would like to introduce Tori Guilfoyle, who has agreed to handle the first two items on the agenda, which we think are helpful to just get cleared out before we move on to the DIP item.

THE COURT: That sounds great.

Ms. Guilfoyle, good morning.

MS. GUILFOYLE: Good morning, Your Honor. Tori Guilfoyle of Blank Rome, on behalf of the debtors. I'm just going to handle the first two matters on the agenda, the first one being the motion for joint administration of the debtors.
We're asking that the seven affiliated debtors with Ravn Air Group be jointly administered with that lead debtor, for procedural purposes only, to ease the burden on the court and to lessen the amount of docket filings. And if Your Honor has any questions about that Honor -- or that motion -- it's fairly procedural.

THE COURT: No, I don't have any questions.

I would ask if anyone wishes to be heard with respect to the request for joint administration.

Very good. I'm going to grant that motion. Based upon the record before me, I do find that the relief requested is standard and routine, and I do find that joint administration of these cases will ease the burden on the Clerk's Office, on the Court, and, frankly, on all parties, by giving a single docket site for which to look for recent filings and developments in the case. So I do believe that the motion is well founded. The motion is granted, and the order will issue.

And I'll look for all of the orders to be uploaded, because I know you got to plug dates into some of them. So I'll look for all of the orders to be uploaded after the hearing, and we'll get them on the docket.

Ms. Guilfoyle, the next matter?

MS. GUILFOYLE: Thank you, Your Honor. The next matter on the agenda is the debtors' application to retain and employ Stretto as the claims-and-noticing agent. There was one comment -- informal comment from the Office of the United States Trustee, with respect to this filing. The request was just that we file a supplemental declaration by the Stretto declarant to reflect the names that were run in the conflicts system. I do have to repeat that there were no connections found, either by Stretto or its ultimate equity owner, with any of the parties that were listed on that potential-interested-parties list.

And one other note, Your Honor, in that I think that we've resolved the Office of the United States Trustee's comment or observation with respect to that application.

And just one other note on that is we attached a fee structure to the end of the engagement letter. And for proprietary reasons, I do have to represent that you're actually approving a little bit lesser of a fee structure here, Your Honor. Just for proprietary reasons, we didn't want to attach the discounted rates that Stretto provided the debtors. But there was an accommodation from Stretto. We obviously thank them for working with us and providing us with a very commercially reasonable set of fees, because, as you know, Your Honor, we did have to solicit the bids of three other -- or two other claims agents, and Stretto came in, obviously, as the lowest, and that's what prompted us to retain them; that plus the convenient fact that they're also West Coast, so they're a little lined up with our decision-makers.

So it all kind of came together seamlessly with their rates and their location in the country. And with that, I'd ask that Your Honor would approve the retention of Stretto as the claims agent. And we'll obviously be filing a follow-up application with them as kind of the administrative agent for the debtors, later on with the second-day retention applications.

THE COURT: Great. Thank you.

Does anyone wish to be heard with respect to the Stretto application?

Okay, I appreciate the presentation. I have had an opportunity to review the application and its attachments. I'm going to approve the retention application for Stretto. I noticed a threshold matter that our local rules require, that, in a case of this size, a debtor promptly move to engage a claims-and-noticing agent. The Court is certainly familiar with Stretto. And I'm satisfied that the record is sufficient to demonstrate that the debtors' decision is consistent with, again, our applicable rules and procedures and that Stretto is certainly able and eligible to perform the services that are identified in the application. The motion is granted, and the order will issue.

Before we go any further, we should probably take a step -- I'm not sure who on the team is going to do it, but we should probably be introducing Mr. Mannion's declaration for purposes of the first-day hearing. I would note -- so I'll 1 leave that to counsel.

MS. GUILFOYLE: I'm going to turn it over to Mr.

Keller, who will introduce his declaration and then proceed with the DIP-financing motion, Your Honor.

THE COURT: That sounds fine.

Mr. Keller.

MS. GUILFOYLE: Thank you.

MR. KELLER: Thank you, Your Honor. Not one to miss a cue. We have submitted Mr. Mannion's declaration and supplemental declaration; they are a matter of record. Mr. Mannion is here virtually in the courtroom, as it were, and available to be examined. I would ask that the declaration be accepted as evidence, subject to subsequent cross-examination.

THE COURT: All right. I note that there are two separate declarations: there was the lead declaration and then a supplemental declaration filed last night or this morning.

I've had an opportunity to review both.

Is there any objection to the admission of Mr.

Mannion's declaration? Again, consistent with my practice, that -- those declarations are being submitted exclusively in connection with the request for relief before the Court at this first-day hearing and generally don't necessarily roll through the balance of the case. So are there any objections to the admission of the declarations?

Very well. Both declarations are admitted.

(Declaration and supplemental declaration of John Mannion in support of DIP financing was hereby received into evidence as Debtors' exhibit, as of this date.)

THE COURT: Just so that I have some sense of what may be coming, is there any party on the line that expects to seek to cross-examine Mr. Mannion regarding the contents of his declaration, at this morning's hearing?

Very well. Mr. Mannion's declaration is admitted without opposition. I would make one further comment so that the record is complete. I did have an opportunity, as I said, to read both of Mr. Mannion's declarations. I appreciate getting them in advance of the hearing. I note that neither of Mr. Mannion's declarations are notarized, for very obvious reasons. And so I'm going to simply note that the Court has observed -- and given the circumstances, I don't believe that there's any material defect with respect to the lack of a notarization of the declarations. They're admitted. And I think we can move forward. All right?

MR. KELLER: Thank you, Your Honor. With Your Honor's leave, I'd like to move to item 10, the last item on the agenda, which is the debtor-in-possession-financing order.

Knowing -- understanding that Your Honor has read through it, I thought I would make, again, a quick presentation just to explain what --

THE COURT: That'd be great.

MR. KELLER: -- what is in there. Very well.

THE COURT: Yeah, I think it would -- appreciate the offer. You've been to my court plenty of times, and normally we would just roll through with the understanding that everybody had all the documents and we're all here and everybody's up to speed and I've reviewed them. Given, again, the circumstances everybody's dealing with, nobody's getting hard binders, et cetera, and everybody's working off of either iPads, laptops, et cetera, providing a little bit more context maybe than would be typical in one of my hearings, is probably appropriate. So you're welcome to proceed, Mr. Keller.

MR. KELLER: That was exactly my thought. And knowing that there are certain issues that need special attention, we wanted to call those out as well.

Just by way of background; the borrowers have pledged substantially all of their assets to the pre-petition secured creditors, who are owed, in the aggregate, a little over ninety million dollars. Mr. Mannion and people at his direction sought various forms of financing for Ravn, including through secured debtor-in-possession-finance loans. But no financiers, other than the DIP lenders, have even made a proposal to Ravn. We believe this is because its cashflow prospects as a business are so dire and the value of its assets without an operating business is almost certainly less than the amount of its secured debt.

While the pre-petition and DIP lenders are represented here by Mr. Neier, I think it's safe to represent that the lenders believe that Ravn's business is worth more if its assets are sold in an orderly liquidation over time rather than in an immediate sale. I would also venture to guess that, if Ravn can locate a more promising exit, perhaps with the assistance of CARES Act funding, the lenders would engage in further negotiations with Ravn about alternative exit scenarios.

In the meantime, however, the terms of the debtor's DIP are set forth in the motion. The total amount of the DIP is twelve million dollars, of which we are asking for authority today to draw six million dollars. The interest rate is set as the base rate plus eight percent, so approximately ten percent. The commitment fee is three percent of the entire facility, or 360,000 dollars, plus an agent fee and unused-line fee, which unused-line fee we expect to be nominal because we expect to fully draw.

At the time of the final hearing, we will ask for authority to allow the DIP lenders to be permitted to roll up their pre-petition secured debt in a ratio of two dollars of pre-petition debt to every one dollar of DIP advances. The DIP lenders have also asked for various waivers that are disclosed in the DIP motion, including lien stipulations, 506(c) and 552(b) waivers, and liens on avoidance actions.

In acknowledgment of the situation and the general rules around the court, the lenders have agreed that all of those foregoing provisions would be subject to entry of the final order; however, except for the lien stipulation, which would remain subject to a committee investigation in the challenge period.

The credit agreement is substantially in the form presented to the Court. But in light of the commandeered property in Barrow, I should identify one revision to the representations and warranties, which relates to casualty events; if anyone wanted to look at section 3.05 of our reps and warrants in the credit agreement. And it's essentially the addition of a parenthetical that says that, while we're representing there are no casualty events that are material, it's agreed that aircraft spare parts and hangars with an aggregate value in excess of a million dollars or other amounts as the required lenders shall agree, shall be deemed material for the purposes of this section 3.15(c) (sic).

We believe that the Barrow event does not trigger a material disclosure in the reps and warranties, but it certainly does indicate the anxiety that both we and the secured creditors have about this situation, in Barrow being seen as a creative solution to other communities' problems.

The DIP loan itself provides a glide path to a 1 2 controlled liquidation that would result in a liquidating trust and the sale of its assets over a period of time. More 3 4 important to Ravn's board and management, it does leave some hope that there may still be a rescue to be had. And very 5 significantly, it provides for payment of substantially all of 6 7 the accrued compensation of the debtors' employees, substantially all of whom had to be laid off on Sunday. For 8 all of these reasons, we're asking that the Court approve the 9 10 DIP on an interim basis. 11 There are details that I'd be happy to address, but at 12 this point I think it'd be appropriate for me to let Mr. Neier 13 add anything he might have -- or Mr. Fox, add any thoughts they 14 have, and take any questions the judge -- Your Honor may have. 15 THE COURT: No, that sounds great. I'd be happy to 16 hear from Mr. Neier. 17 Mr. Neier, good morning. It's good to see you. 18 MR. NEIER: Good morning, Your Honor. How are you? 19 THE COURT: I am well. And yourself? MR. NEIER: I'm well, and I hope your family's well 20 21 and safe, as well. 22 THE COURT: We are. Thank you. MR. NEIER: Your Honor, this is a -- for a relatively 23 small DIP, this has been one of the most contested DIPs I've 24 25 worked on in years. Many of the lenders think that they would be better off in a Chapter 7; the reason is because the collateral's probably worth about one-third of the outstanding amount of the loan. And then putting an additional amount on top of that was extremely difficult and extremely contested. And as of this morning, I have two lenders in the DIP lender group who are refusing to fund, based on the North Barrow situation. But I'll get to that in a minute.

I think the major thing about the DIP is it's a fairly standard DIP that we presented to Your Honor, and all of the --sort of the extraordinary provisions are subject to entry of a final order, as you would expect. The one provision I did want to raise is the two-to-one rollup. That was necessary -- the two-to-one rollup of participating DIP lenders; get their prepetition debt rolled up. That was necessary to induce a sufficient number of lenders to go into the DIP and to make the DIP loan.

One of the issues with respect to the DIP loan, frankly, is that the debtor -- basically, it's had professionals involved in this, and they haven't been able to visit Alaska because Alaska has a fourteen-day quarantine from anybody coming from the Lower 48 -- or isolation period. And so they've been involved about a week. I don't know how long the special directors were involved, but I don't think it was much longer. And so there's very little information that's been done -- or been able to get collected.

The part that is really troubling for the lenders has been that the first six million dollars, the initial draw that's on the table for today, that's really just to have the debtors make payroll; has nothing to do with, really, protecting the collateral. I think the debtors have over six million dollars that will have to be paid out today, essentially, to make that payroll payment.

It was understood that the debtors were primarily interested in making sure that their employees, who have now largely been laid off and are paid in arrears -- that they get paid for every day they work. And that's certainly understandable. But it makes the loan that much more difficult because it's the second part of the DIP, the next six million dollars, that really go to protecting, securing, and ultimately having an orderly liquidation of the collateral.

Now, with respect to today's hearing, this North

Barrow situation has caused a great deal of consternation among the lenders. They're not precisely worried about the North

Barrow situation itself; it's really the fact that it'll set a precedent for other towns and villages to do exactly the same thing that it serves (sic) by the debtor.

Now, we're perfectly willing to work out an arrangement with the State of Alaska -- and I believe the State of Alaska has approached the debtors on this -- to resume some kind of operations that are necessary for delivery of medicine and delivery of packages and what have you, which is what the -- what was -- the debtors' limited operations were only -very limited in -- they weren't able to fly passengers, by and large; they were really just delivering essential packages and Amazon packages and what have you, during the COVID-19 period.

So my understanding, for everybody's benefit, is that, in North Barrow, there were no aircraft fees. I want to repeat that: there were no aircraft fees. That's my latest understanding. And the debtors' professionals have been trying to make sure that that is in fact the case. There are some other villages that may be part of the North Barrow situation. We're trying to confirm that no aircraft (gap in audio). But the precedent that it sets is that, under the guise of police powers, various government officials -- local government officials could somehow seize the collateral of the lenders and just start using it without paying for it.

Now, COVID-19's a very serious issue, and obviously we want people to get medicine, we want people to have access to packages, which could include food deliveries. So it's not like we're unaware of this. But the idea of just seizing assets without paying for them, when we're willing to consider some kind of limited operations which are paid for by the State of Alaska or by municipalities in the state of Alaska, that's unacceptable. And it makes it very difficult to actually go through this loan.

And the DIP lenders -- or the proposed DIP lenders have actually called for a call immediately after this call, to discuss whether they should fund this case. And that's why I think Mr. Keller keeps on saying, we're hopeful to have a DIP but, if we don't have a DIP, we're going to move quickly to a Chapter 7.

So I think it is going to be necessary -- and I'm sorry to do this in real time. If we were -- if we were -- if we were in the court, Your Honor, I would have taken a break and I would have spoken to Mr. Keller outside the hall. That's just not something that I can do. And then I would have conferred with our clients to make sure that they were also on board.

I think it's going to be necessary for some kind of comfort order. Hopefully that's all it is, not like a contempt motion but some kind of comfort order that basically says that people can't seize assets without paying for them and start operating in the name of the public good. We're all in favor of the public good, but we haven't reached the point where people commandeer things. And that's actually what the order says: they're commandeering the debtors' assets for the benefit of this town. We're sympathetic, but we can't have a situation where this creates a precedent that other towns then adopt and the debtors' collateral is essentially being used without being paid for.

1 So that's the issue that we have today.

THE COURT: I think I'd like a little bit of clarity, then. Obviously, I'm learning -- this is evolving very quickly, and I'm sympathetic to the position of all parties and, frankly, to the position of the authorities in Alaska.

The question is not, at least immediately, before me, and I'm not necessarily going to either rule or comment on it at this point in the hearing.

If I were to boil down your comments, though, Mr. Neier, is the point that the lenders are not necessarily committed to fund under this order, given the uncertainty, or -- I'm trying to figure out the path forward, and my instinct would be to say you've laid out this issue, you've expressed, frankly, legitimate concerns, but since, again, we can't really necessarily take a break, go into the hall, and deal with these -- when I said that this process is cumbersome, I'm certainly the one who's acutely feeling that, just because I would normally try to guide that process as best I can, and it's difficult under these circumstances. But I think, in terms of a path forward, I'd like some clarity. I understand that there's this issue. Mr. Keller mentioned it. You've now mentioned it. The point that I made was that the court is open, and this process should play itself out and, if you need redress to me, I'll be here.

Hang on just a second. I'm going to ask that everybody that's on the call place their phones on mute, because we're getting a little bit of feedback right now.

But I think the most rational path forward is to move forward with the DIP financing and hopefully get a form of order entered. If there are gating issues to the funding request that require some business issues, some negotiations, or even further proceedings in front of me, we can deal with that. But, I mean, I do think that we should move forward with a DIP-financing order, because I think the debtors made their case that they need that.

Does that process make sense to you? And obviously, if we need to get back on the phone promptly, you've got my commitment that we'll accomplish that. And again, I make no comments on the substance of the issues. I'm in -- this is a -- this is a little bit of a untrod territory for me and, I think, for everybody on the call. So we'll figure it out. But can we move forward with the DIP financing, notwithstanding the concerns you've shared with me that the lenders have?

MR. NEIER: Yes, Your Honor. I think that's a good idea, because ultimately the DIP order is the Court approving the debtors' request to be authorized to enter into the loan documents and the DIP order.

So I think that's a good idea to move forward on the DIP facility and get the Court's -- subject to the Court's approval of the debtors' authorization into the DIP facility.

I did want to -- I did want to raise the issue, because -- and I want -- I know that there are some officials from the State of Alaska who were invited to participate in this proceeding. The initial funding that is going under the DIP order is to make payroll; it's to pay 1,000 employees in the state of Alaska for the time they've worked. So it's sort of a leap of faith for the lenders to make that accommodation and pay that money without understanding that their collateral's also going to be safe. And that's the issue I wanted to highlight for the Court.

We may have to take advantage of Your Honor's availability to bring on some emergency relief, but I'm not asking, with no papers in front of you, no opposition, to have you make some ruling from the bench. But we view this as a very serious matter that may have to be addressed by the Court. I do think it makes sense to go forward.

I want to mention that -- and Mr. Fox, I know, is on the phone -- we did make several changes to the DIP order, at the request of the U.S. Trustee. Hopefully, you were provided with a blackline.

THE COURT: I have it.

MR. NEIER: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor. And I don't know if Mr. Fox has any other comments, but we'll continue to work through the issues. And we hope to upload an order with an attached form of DIP credit agreement and DIP budget, later

1 on today.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Neier.

Mr. Fox?

MR. FOX: Good morning, Your Honor. Tim Fox again, on behalf of the United States Trustee.

So I just want to start by thanking both the debtors and the lenders for working through my comments cooperatively. And I can represent to the Court that, under the current circumstances and the facts facing these debtors, my office doesn't object to the entry of the interim order as revised. I would highlight for the Court -- and unfortunately, I was inadvertently disconnected for a moment, so I missed some of Mr. Keller's presentation. So there was at least one point that I wanted him to walk through, and I hope it was made.

But one of the issues that I struggled with and that under all the circumstances here I will not press an objection with respect to is that normally it would be more appropriate, for fees that are going to be generated by extension of the DIP financing to be ratable across the distributions, approving and paying fees commensurate with the interim draw that's available, and then doing the balance at the final hearing.

It's my understanding that the debtors are pressing forward with approval of the entire facility fees here, at the entry of the interim order, potentially with some ability for other parties at the second-day to wrangle the issues as they see fit. But under the circumstances here, and based on lenders' counsel's representations regarding the issues that are facing the lenders syndicate here, my office doesn't object to the current request with respect to the fees but highlight that issue as being something that in other circumstances would not necessarily be appropriate.

And, Your Honor, if you have any questions regarding the redline, I can address those points. But for the most part, my comments were accepted and, I believe, are beneficial to the parties-in-interest, to allow these issues to play out in advance of a final hearing on the DIP financing.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Fox. I don't have any specific questions for you. And again, I very much appreciate getting from the debtors the blackline, which I've really carefully read this morning. So I think I've got a handle on the nature of the relief that's being requested and the modifications that were negotiated by your office.

I don't think that I have any specific questions. Let me ask -- but I do think that there is one appropriate comment before we move forward. There's been a good deal of discussion, starting with the debtor and then particularly from Mr. Neier, with respect to concerns about what may be going on in Alaska. And I am acutely aware, as aware as anybody, of the difficulty in just the mechanics of trying to negotiate some of these issues or navigate these challenges. We've got significant time-zone differences, we've got people thousands of miles apart, where often these things would get resolved -you're right, Mr. Neier -- in the lobby and satisfactorily.

But I think it's incumbent upon me to afford an opportunity to the representative for the State of Alaska. I do note that there is, at least on my participant calendar, a representative from the State of Alaska. I want to be clear, though: I am not looking to put anyone on the spot. This has been evolving rapidly. And if the position of the State of Alaska is right now they do not wish to address these issues in court without consultation with the client, I absolutely respect that. But I think it's appropriate to give the State of Alaska or other participants an opportunity to weigh in on the issues that have been raised, before we get to the specific consideration of the DIP order.

Counsel?

MR. SCHMIDT: Yes, Your Honor. This is Robert
Schmidt, Assistant Attorney General with the State of Alaska, Department of Law. And I appreciate this opportunity. I was waiting for a pause to interject myself to address these issues.

To give Your Honor some context; Alaska does not have counties. The state is generally divided into boroughs; these are, by way of area, mega-counties. The North Slope Borough has an area of almost 95,000 square miles, which is to say it is just under twice the size the state of New York. It has fewer than 10,000 people. It has approximately half a dozen, or eight or so, primary villages; they are all rapidly approaching twenty-four hours of daylight but, in my survey of their current temperatures, all of them -- all of them but one,

the weather is currently below zero.

Barrow, which formerly changed its name recently to Utqiagvik, but most people still refer to it as "Barrow" -- that's the population hub, as it were, of the North Slope Borough. It's the northernmost town in the United States. It's seventy degrees north latitude. They have approximately 3,000 people that live there. Many of the other villages, for example, Kaktovik, Point Lay, Wainwright, those are all villages of a few hundred people, and separated by hundreds of miles. Also to give Your Honor some context, two cities served by Ravn -- Barrow and Unalaska -- are about as far apart as Wilmington and Houston, Texas.

It has come to everybody's attention that the mayor of the North Slope Borough issued a proclamation on Sunday, purporting to commandeer Ravn's assets. State of Alaska has a very clear position on this:

First, under substantive state law, boroughs do not have the legal authority, under Alaska law, to commandeer property.

Second, as a matter of bankruptcy law, everything that they sought to commandeer is part of the bankruptcy estate, and that very much puts the North Slope Borough in the crosshairs for potential relief before this Court.

Third, and I can't resist myself, but the last time I checked, the North Slope Borough was not authorized by the Federal Aviation Administration to operate an airline or an air-cargo operation. The thought of government officials attempting to operate an air-cargo facility is, frankly, very concerning; very concerning.

And finally, and most importantly, frankly, is that was royally counterproductive. We are hearing from the lenders that the uncertainty created by Barrow's actions are making the situation worse, not better.

Now, having said all of that, the state is acutely aware, and has been trying to work with the debtors, that these air services are almost in the nature of a utility. Everything that you see on (sic) your stores in Delaware or in San Francisco or wherever you're at, your prescription medications, your groceries, all of that right now has to come in by air, and it is critically, critically important. And the counsel for the debtor used the phrase (sic) "humanitarian". That's absolutely right. It is a humanitarian need for these communities, in the North Slope Borough and throughout Alaska, that they have substitute air service absolutely as quickly as possible. And that will require that Ravn allow the State of Alaska to sublet or otherwise allow others to use property that's currently leased to Ravn.

In particular as regards Barrow, it is -- we don't have the facts but, just to frame the issues that are going to evolve very quickly, Ravn owns substantially all of the ground-service facilities and infrastructure at the Barrow Airport. So in order for any -- for Barrow to be served or for any of the communities in the North Slope Borough to be served, we have to be able to utilize -- other air carriers who are ready, willing, and able to step up will need to be able to use Ravn's facilities on the North Slope Borough, whether it's by sublease with the Alaska Department of Transportation or otherwise.

Secondly, moving down to Southwest Alaska, which is, like I said, about 1,000 miles, or more, from Barrow, if Your Honor has ever had king crab, it has almost certainly come out of the Southwest Alaska region, as well as Alaska red salmon.

Alaska Airlines, which is a major regional carrier throughout the west coast, they do offer seasonal service. They apparently have contracts with Ravn for the use of Ravn's facilities. I was on the phone yesterday with Alaska Airlines that they need approval whether it's from Ravn or this Court, that they are ready, willing, and able to start up some service to Southwest Alaska in as soon as two weeks as long as they can get the approval to utilize the facilities that they have already got agreements with Ravn on in Southwest Alaska.

So to sum up, the State of Alaska's position is clear. The North Slope Borough's actions are void and of no force and effect under state law. They violate the Bankruptcy Code provisions relating to assets of the estate. They violate any number of provisions of substantive FAA regulations. And the State of Alaska would join in any effort to seek relief should the parties not be able to get the North Slope Borough to stand down.

But most importantly, it's counterproductive. If the goal is to get air service started as quickly as possible, then they have done the wrong thing. And they're making the lenders, the central parties to this bankruptcy, quite nervous.

Then the last issue that is not before the Court today but could be very soon is hopefully negotiated relief allowing substitute air service to start up as soon as possible.

And thank you, Your Honor, for the opportunity.

THE COURT: Mr. Schmidt, thank you very much. I appreciate your comments. And again, I did not mean to put you on the spot, but your comments were particularly helpful and informative.

Again, before we turn back to the DIP, I have some comments. But I would ask if anyone else wished to be heard.

MR. NEIER: Your Honor, one -- this is David Neier.

One minor -- one less important point is we were contacted and the debtors were contacted by the airline's clearing house,

ACH. Ravn Air provided interconnection services with major air 1 2 carriers for those people going throughout the state of Alaska. They wanted to know that the debtors are not going to assert a 3 4 position essentially that they're entitled to the gross receivables out of the interconnection service that they 5 6 provide; rather, they're entitled to the net receivables. 7 So my way of thinking, if ACH has a prior committed 8 lien by virtue of setoff, that's not something that we're -that the lenders are seeking under the DIP order to take action 9 10 about. I think we can address this either through a separate stipulation with ACH or just getting through that issue or in 11 12 the final DIP order. But I wanted to raise it. I think their 13 counsel, Hogan Lovells, is on the phone. And I'd invite them 14 to say any comments as well. 15 THE COURT: All right. Do I have counsel from Hogan 16 Lovells on the line? 17 MR. NEIER: Oh, apparently they didn't make it. 18 THE COURT: All right. 19 MR. NEIER: We'll work that issue out, Your Honor. THE COURT: Okay. All right. 20 21 MS. GUILFOYLE: Your Honor, this is Tori Guilfoyle. 22 I don't mean to interrupt, but there has been a couple problems with CourtCall connections. I know I was dropped for about six minutes. Mr. Fox referenced that he had been dropped on the call. So there's some intermittent connection problems with CourtCall. And I --

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. GUILFOYLE: -- I just dialed in, but I just wanted to let you know.

THE COURT: All right. That sounds fine. Obviously, we're all just doing our best here. And to the extent the parties got dropped off and want to chime back in, they would be welcome to do so.

All right. Before we turn to the DIP-financing order itself, I had some comments that I was planning to make toward the conclusion of the hearing. But I think now is actually an appropriate time.

Also, can I ask -- can parties, again, place their phones on mute? I'm getting a good deal of feedback right now.

All right. It's been observed now a couple times that we are in a difficult circumstance. And I don't mean the pandemic. That goes without saying. But it is a challenging exercising for all the professionals and stakeholders in the process in a rapidly evolving case that provides an essential service to deal with these issues.

And I say that cognizant that I have a luxury in this job, and that is that I am often surrounded by able and experienced professionals that have done this kind of thing, dealt with these kind of emergencies in the past. But right now we can't get people into a room. And every type of communication takes longer and more time. And it is more difficult, frankly, to get in front of the Court.

I appreciate Mr. Schmidt's comments very much. It's certainly helpful to hear from the State of Alaska and the guidance with respect to both the immediate issues of concerns with respect to North Barrow but also the larger issues of the nature of the services that are provided by this debtor.

So my observations would be as follows: It's not my position or my prerogative to second-guess the thought process of the lenders. And again, I think the lenders have identified some very, very legitimate concerns, even independent of the Barrow, North Barrow issues about the position about they're in. And this is a classic circumstance that secured lenders face in lots and lots of cases.

If there is a case that cries out for a practical business solution going forward -- and again, I'm not speaking directly to the Barrow issue. I would hope that that issue can get explored and resolved. But it would seem to me that this is a case that really cries out for that. And there may be need for a variety of business arrangements to hold things together, if possible, to provide necessary service.

When we talk about delivery of food and medicine, every single person that's on this call is trying to figure out and to time when it is that they would go to a grocery store right now. But we have the luxury of going to a grocery store that is going to be, other than toilet paper, fully stocked. That's a situation that might be a luxury not enjoyed by the folks in the towns that are -- that have been the subject of our discussion and that I'm sure Mr. Mannion could speak to with more clarity.

So I can't predict and I wouldn't presume to identify how this is going to evolve over the next hours and days. But I am cognizant of the need for the services that are being provided here. I'm not making any comment about who's providing what and who's paying for what. But I will tell you this. There should be, and I expect there will be, meaningful discussions between players in order to try to hold value together, to maintain value, and to maintain the services. We are in a complicated situation. But I think the easiest way that I can explain this to you is one of the real challenges is both -- for you folks is negotiating one of these deals.

And then the last thing is, what is the judge going to do with this? And so I think the short answer is -- without getting myself too deep into trouble is that I think you should expect that you would have a willing partner in the Court.

If there are business arrangements and stipulations that can hold this together that are responsive to the interests that are at stake and, frankly, the rights that are at stake here as well that need to be respected, you can expect that I would be likely supportive of those efforts and likely to address them in terms of providing necessary authority on a short-term basis, if we need to.

I'm not inviting the world to expedited motion practice. But the last thing I would want is promising negotiations hung up by a concern about whether or not you can get this in front of Shannon or, if we do this, are we going to get crucified for not necessarily having all of the authority that perhaps we had.

That is a general observation. And again, I'm confident, having had a lot of experience with many, many of the folks that I see that are on the phone today, that you've got a pretty good sense of how the Court is going to address this going forward. But we are in an emergency just generally. And the concerns that are expressed about the folks that are serviced by this debtor are manifest and really not subject to debate.

And the last observation I would have is -- again, it's not my money. It's not my liens. It's not my -- it's not my business. But there seems to be no doubt that when -- not if, but when we emerge from this current crisis, there is no doubt that the state of Alaska and the citizens of Alaska will need a service pretty much identical to what it is that Ravn provides. And I think that's the tightrope that everybody that's on this call is trying to navigate. And in that respect, you have my support to try to navigate that.

I would ask if other parties wish to be heard with respect to the proposed DIP financing. Okay.

Here's what we're going to do. I'm going to grant the DIP-financing motion. And I will enter the proposed form of order that is reflected in the latest blackline.

Obviously -- and it's becoming a recurrent theme.

Normally, we would do an extensive page turn and we would talk about some of the specific issues. They had been pointed out to me. And I appreciate Mr. Neier raising the point of the rollup in the business context in which that was negotiated and the rationale behind it. And I am satisfied that that is appropriate and warranted.

And I would, again, express my appreciation to the Office of the United States Trustee, again, under difficult circumstances for working through the order and working through issues with the lenders and the debtor in order to get to a final order.

Again, I take a relatively light hand in this context just because it's difficult to sort of do a page turn. I did it the other day, and it took a long time. But I have a sense and, frankly, a high level of confidence with respect to the nature of the relief that's requested.

And I'm sympathetic to the angst I guess that the lenders have expressed about the fact that the interim financing is largely going to pay employees. But I have said in almost every single first-day hearing I've had for more than fourteen years that, at the outset of one of these cases, I have no greater constituency that I'm concerned for than those employees that work or have worked for the debtor. And so I understand that much of the money is going to go to wages and salary.

And I think I would agree with Mr. Neier that that is, from the debtors' point of view, a big ask. But, nevertheless, I think it's appropriate. And I do think that it also hopefully positions the debtor for an opportunity to hold things together and perhaps to rebuild and revitalize to the extent possible a business that's just essential in this community.

So again, in the absence of pending objections and with understanding of the concerns or hesitation expressed by Mr. Neier, given some of the issues in North Barrow, I'm being asked today to approve the debtors' request for authority to enter into a financing arrangement. And I will do so.

I'm not going to heavily burden the record. I will simply note under Bankruptcy Code Section 361, 363, and 364, as well as Bankruptcy Rule 4001, that the debtors have carried their burden under each of those statutory sections. And under Bankruptcy Rule 4001, I do find that the financing is necessary to avoid immediate and irreparable harm to the debtors' reorganization effort. The DIP-financing order is granted.

And again, I think we would deal with that in a final context 1 2 at our hearing late April. Mr. Keller, what do we have next? You got to take me 3 off mute. 4 MR. KELLER: Thank you, Your Honor. I would note that 5 we have found the invariable typo in the interim order and 6 7 dupe. And we will send the Court a cleaned-up version of that order to be entered finally. 8 9 THE COURT: Very good. 10 MR. KELLER: At this point, I will be presenting my partner, Jane Kim, to take the rest of the agenda. 11 12 Before I do, I'm afraid that I was booked for another hearing to start at noon, Your Honor's time. So with Your 13 Honor's consent, I will drop off in about ten minutes and let 14 15 Jane Kim carry the rest of the hearing. THE COURT: That's just fine. All right. And thank 16 17 you, Mr. Keller. Good luck to you. 18 MR. KELLER: Thank you. 19 And with that, I would like to introduce my partner, Jane Kim, who will take the remaining items on the calendar. 20 THE COURT: All right. Good morning, Ms. Kim. 21 22 MS. KIM: Good morning, Your Honor. For the record, Jane Kim, Keller Benevenutti Kim, on behalf of the debtors. 23 24 Your Honor, I'm going to be going through the rest of 25

the agenda in the order that the matters are listed unless Your Honor wishes to take them in a different order.

THE COURT: No, that's fine.

MS. KIM: As I think it's been -- Your Honor has mentioned, that -- has observed and is obvious from the revised orders that we filed last night, we have been working with the Office of the United States Trustee and with Mr. Fox on all of these matters. And the revised orders that we filed last night reflect comments from Mr. Fox.

And so my understanding is that, while he may wish to speak on some of the specific matters, that we are proceeding on a consensual basis. And we really do thank Mr. Fox and his office for working with us to resolve his concerns.

THE COURT: Very good. You may proceed.

MS. KIM: So the first item that I will be going through is the cash-management order, docket number 6. And in connection with that, I would reference the supplement declaration as well as the first-day declaration and the supplement to the cash-management motion that we also filed late last night.

THE COURT: I have seen -- I've seen it.

MS. KIM: Thank you, Your Honor. And thank you for going through all of the papers that we filed late last night.

Through the cash-management motion, we are asking for an interim order to allow the debtors to continue the use of their cash-management system and their existing bank accounts and business forms.

And in particular, one of the items that I wanted to call out to Your Honor that Your Honor has probably already noticed is we have a DACA on -- for the benefit of the secured lenders at the First National Bank of Alaska. And there are -- oh, I'm sorry.

THE COURT: That's okay.

MS. KIM: Is that call -- okay.

THE COURT: We're good.

MS. KIM: And FNBA is not an authorized depository with the U.S. Trustee, doesn't have a uniform depository agreement with the Office of the U.S. Trustee. We have asked FNBA if they will execute one. They're reviewing it. But the way that the interim order works right now is that we -- it will allow the debtors to continue to hold its cash in the FNBA account, and in particular the DIP funds that Your Honor just approved. And while the debtors work with the DIP lenders to execute -- negotiate a DACA with Wells Fargo if FNBA is not able to becoming its authorized depository and sign a UDA with the Office of U.S. Trustee.

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. KIM: And the only other -- the other items that we wanted to call was we do have a -- the supplement to the cash-management motion had referenced some -- the ACH clearing house issue that Mr. Neier had mentioned. We worked with ACH and included some additional language in the revised cashmanagement order that we filed last night with the supplement that makes it clear that the billings that -- the settlements that ACH does with respect to inner line billing can be continued to be set off.

And thus, the automatic stay can be modified in order to permit ACH's participants to effectuate those setoffs such that the debtors are able to receive those settlements in the form of revenue which they were scheduled to receive today but because of the timing of this hearing and that scheduled settlement might need to be delayed. But we are hopeful that with this interim order being entered that we will be able to get that settlement from ACH as soon as possible.

THE COURT: Okay. I did see the supplemental declaration that touched on the issues with ACH. And there was a -- basically a prediction in the supplements that were submitted that the parties would be able to memorialize a stipulation or some proposed order going forward. And I'm happy to let that process play out.

I would ask if anyone else wishes to be heard with the respect to the debtors' cash-management motion.

Very well. I'm going to go ahead and grant the cashmanagement motion.

And again, I note that the record does reflect that there was a supplemental declaration and a supplement to the motion itself to address some specific issues. But as a threshold matter, I note that the relief requested is consistent with that which the Court has seen in many, many prior cases. This is a corporate debtor with a sophisticated process for managing and moving money within the corporate family. And I do find that the relief requested is appropriated and warranted under the circumstances.

The motion is granted, and the order will issue. To the extent that there is a resolution as noted regarding the ACH issues, I would be happy to entertain that under certification of counsel, if the parties believe that that's procedurally appropriate, or we can deal with it by motion or by stipulation. But I think the matter can move forward.

Ms. Kim, next motion?

MS. KIM: Yes. Sorry. Just to clarify on the ACH issue as well as the cash-management order that we will be submitting, that order itself actually has what we believe is --

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. KIM: -- is the resolution of the issues with ACH. So I still believe that is a further stipulation in that regard as required.

There is one other minor change to the revised order that we submitted last night, reflecting a comment that we received from Mr. Fox this morning which is that, with respect to the thirty-day stay -- a waiver of the Section 345(b) 1 requirements, that we will -- if we need to because aren't able 2 to, for example, negotiate a DACA within those thirty days, 3 4 that rather than get a -- have it done by an agreement with the U.S. Trustee, that we'll seek court approval both of in 5 language that Mr. Fox has assured me is flexible enough to be 6 7 able to accomplish through certification of counsel rather than 8 a separate motion. And --THE COURT: Okay. That sounds fine. 9 10 MS. KIM: So we will submit that order. 11 And then the next matter is the utilities motion at --12 THE COURT: Okay. MS. KIM: -- docket number 7. 13 THE COURT: Sure. 14 15 MS. KIM: The utilities motion provides for an adequate-assurance deposit of 70,000 dollars into a segregated 16 17 interest-bearing account that reflects approximately two weeks of the debtors' estimated utility expenses.

The one somewhat unusual aspect of this motion is our treatment of aircraft fuel and utilities. Your Honor has heard numerous times today I think this morning that Alaska -- and how things are in Alaska is quite different than we are used to down here in the contiguous forty-eight states.

21

22

23

And in particular, because there are so many remote areas in Alaska, there are a number of fuel providers that end up being the sole source of fuel in those remote areas. Unlike here where we might have an ARCO and a Mobil and a Chevron gas station and so we don't have to think about them at utilities, there they are much more like utilities because they are -- really it's a single source of fuel.

We believe that the current adequate-assurance deposit is sufficient to protect those utilities, given just the overall reduction in operations. The 70,000-dollar deposit was based on pre-petition utility usage over two weeks. And the fact is that we don't anticipate that there will be much of any immediate fuel needs.

But at the U.S. Trustee's suggestion, we'll be adding in a provision to the interim order that the adequate-assurance deposit calculation is subject to adjustment if operations do return to a normal level just so that we can bring that up if it turns out that we do need more fuel than we anticipated during this interim period.

THE COURT: Okay. That sounds fine.

MS. KIM: I think everything else is hopefully self-evident in terms of the process by which utilities, once they receive service of this order, can go about requesting additional adequate-assurance deposits or having it done in a different way before they -- but we do believe that this order is necessary in order to ensure that the debtors are able to preserve their assets and their ability to operate in whatever way they need to without disruption. And we would ask Your Honor to grant the interim order.

THE COURT: Okay. Can I ask if any party wishes to be heard with respect to the debtors' utility request?

And, Ms. Kim, I do appreciate the extended focus on the fuel service providers. That's not typical, but I understand the debtors' position in that respect.

Does any other party wish to be heard right now?

Okay. I'm going to grant the motion. And I'll deal with it in two steps.

As a threshold matter, the first issue is basically the routine utility services motion that we see in every case. And I'm going to grant the motion. I do find that it is consistent with that which -- with relief that I and my colleagues have approved and authorized in many, many prior cases. And I find that the relief strikes an appropriate balance between the rights of a utility service provider to adequate assurance and the needs of a debtor-in-possession to maintain uninterrupted supplies of utilities services and the balance that's identified and provided for under Bankruptcy Code Section 366.

With respect to the fuel service issue, I do think that -- given the nature of the services that are provided and the geography where it's being provided, I think that it is not a stretch at all to describe the fuel service providers that have been identified in the motion and described by Ms. Kim today as being akin to actually utilities. And so I am satisfied that the relief requested is appropriate and warranted. The motion is granted, and the order will issue.

MS. KIM: Thank you, Your Honor.

The next item on the agenda is the taxes motion, docket number 8, for which we're seeking an interim order allowing us to -- the debtors to pay any unpaid tax obligation during the interim period before the final hearing.

At this time, the only unpaid taxes of which we're aware is 320,000 dollars in excise taxes that, under the DIP budget, is not contemplated to be paid until after the second-day hearing. But that said, we thought it was still appropriate to request interim relief in the event that there are unanticipated tax obligations that are discovered to avoid the need for an emergency request.

So in that regard, we've included in the revised interim order based upon a comment from the Office of the U.S. Trustee for a 100,000-dollar cap on interim payments of tax obligations.

THE COURT: Okay. Does anybody wish to be heard with respect to the debtors' tax motion?

Okay. I'm going to grant the motion. I am satisfied that the relief requested is appropriate and warranted. And I don't disagree with Ms. Kim that there is -- while it may be that these obligations are likely to come due perhaps after the hearing we've got scheduled for the 29th, experience does teach that tax bills and invoices often arrive without warning and as a surprise. And especially at this time it would be wise to try to avoid the process of trying to pull together emergency hearings or emergency relief, given the challenges everyone is facing.

In addition, I note that they've been described as excise taxes. And I think an argument could be made that these are in fact -- they may be trust fund taxes. Case law teaches that if they are true trust fund taxes, it's not even likely property of the estate.

But nevertheless, I'm satisfied that the debtors have carried their burden as to the relief requested. And I do note that the relief requested implicates Bankruptcy Rule 6003 in that it contemplates potentially the payment of certain pre-petition obligations in the first few weeks of the case.

Nevertheless, based upon Mr. Mannion's declaration as well as counsel's representations and the Court's long experience, I'm satisfied the debtors' reorganization effort would suffer the risk of immediate and irreparable harm in the absence of the relief requested. The motion is granted. The order will issue.

MS. KIM: Thank you, Your Honor.

The next item on the agenda is the insurance motion at docket number 9. By that motion, we are seeking an interim order asking for the ability to pay pre-petition obligations under our insurance program and the insurance financing arrangement that the debtors have.

As described in Mr. Mannion's first-day declaration and in the motion, there is 1.25 million dollars of a -- of pre-petition obligations that, if the debtors were to renew their insurance, continue their insurance program, they would have to pay at this time as described in the motion and Mr. Mannion's declaration.

We are exploring new insurance policies. Obviously, given where we are right now, our -- the debtors' insurance needs may be different and may require lower insurance coverage than it had during normal operation. So we're exploring that.

And we may not need to pay any pre-petition amounts owing under the debtors' insurance programs and the insurance financing arrangements. But out of an abundance of caution, because these are our existing insurance policies, while other options are being explored, we would like to be able to maintain them. And therefore, the debtors seek authority to be able to pay those pre-petition amounts and would seek a confirmation that the debtors can paid any immediately owed post-petition obligations under those insurance policies.

THE COURT: Okay. Can I ask if anyone wishes to be heard with respect to the debtors' insurance motion?

MR. FOX: Good morning again, Your Honor. Tim Fox on behalf of the United States Trustee.

I just rise to address this motion because it is a little bit of an unusual circumstance from what Your Honor and I normally see. It's my understanding that the debtors realize the important of maintaining adequate insurance coverage but, given the operational realities that they're facing, may look for flexibility in tailoring their insurance coverage to better suit their current operational footprint.

And with the understanding that, regardless of whatever path they take, they will maintain adequate insurance coverage, my office doesn't object to the relief that's being sought here today on the first-day.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Fox.

Does anyone else wish to be heard? Okay.

I'm going to grant this motion. I do note that it is a little bit different from a typical motion in that there is a little bit of optionality or flexibility built into it. But again, I think, consistent with Mr. Fox's observations, the debtors' need for that or desire for that flexibility is pretty obviously.

Nevertheless, the relief requested completes the debtor obtaining authority to maintain appropriate insurance. And I'm going to grant that motion.

I note, again, that this is relief that's consistent eScribers, LLC | (973) 406-2250 operations@escribers.net | www.escribers.net with that which the Court has granted on many, many prior occasions. And I typically observe that any debtor that comes under the jurisdiction of this Court is obliged to maintain appropriate insurance consistent with its post-petition conduct and activities.

I would further note that the Office of the United States Trustee operating guidelines likewise require a debtor-in-possession to maintain appropriate and necessary insurance. And I'm satisfied that this motion accomplishes that.

I do note as well that this motion does also implicate Bankruptcy Rule 6003 and that certain obligations may come due or be paid within the first few weeks of the case.

Nevertheless, I'm satisfied that, based upon the record before me and relying upon Mr. Mannion's declaration, I do find that the relief requested is necessary to avoid immediate and irreparable harm to the debtors' operations and its reorganization effort. The motion is granted, and the order will issue.

MS. KIM: Thank you, Your Honor.

The final item on the agenda which, in many ways to the debtors is the most important operational first-day motion on the agenda, is the employee wages and benefits motions.

You have heard elusion multiple times this morning to the fact that the debtors are seeking the interim financing largely to pay the payroll and the employee wage obligation of the debtors, particularly for the employees who were terminated in a large-scale reduction of force on Sunday before the filing of the Chapter 11 cases.

There are thirty-nine employees who are remaining at the company since that reduction of force post-petition. And I can represent to the Court that they are working very, very tirelessly to -- largely to ensure not just that the cases continue to be administered and that all of the assets are protected but also try to get these paychecks out to the employees and make sure -- to their formal colleagues.

And I think we all can understand that being able to pay these employees will be important to the morale of the current -- the remaining employees as well as the -- to protect the ability of the debtors to rehire those employees, former employees, should we be able to resume operations.

So with that context and with the understanding that this is a difficult situation, made even more difficult in these -- in this current economic environment where, for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is just the fact that nobody can be with each other, that being able to get alternative employment will be difficult, if not impossible, during these times. And therefore, the debtors very much believe that being able to make sure that these employees and former employees who were just terminated are able to receive their full paychecks is important.

So therefore, we are seeking not -- in this case not an interim order but a final order for the purpose of allowing for finality and giving certainty to those employees that they're able to get their paychecks. We're asking for a final order to permit the debtors to pay all pre-petition compensation, including any accrued pay time off for terminated employees, unreimbursed business expenses, as well as our pre-petition deductions and pre-petition benefits.

We did, as Your Honor knows, file a supplemental declaration of Mr. Mannion to correct some of the numbers around the priority cap.

THE COURT: Right.

MS. KIM: And it's discussed further, the paid time off benefits, after receiving some comments from Mr. Fox and the Office of the U.S. Trustee.

As noted, there are thirty-two employees who are owed more than the statutory priority cap under 507(a)(4) and (a)(5). This is almost entirely relating to accrued paid time off benefits that must be paid to the terminated employees and the -- which is under the debtors' employee policies. PTO is required to be paid to employees who are involuntarily terminated once they are terminated.

These are terminated employees who lost their jobs because of the coronavirus-related disruption and the financial impact on the debtors that led to needing to stop operations for the time being. And these are employees that, if the company is able to get the government funding necessary to resume operations, would need to be rehired. And the debtors believe that that possibility, in and of itself, is valuable enough to the estate to warrant payment.

But even if there were no restart possible, the employees who lost their jobs, they've lost their jobs. They're in an extraordinarily challenging economic season. And it's both the debtors would submit humane to make sure that they receive their full entitlement to pay and a much-needed morale boost for their few remaining colleagues who are -- remain with the company and are just essential to administer the estate and preserve the value of the debtors' assets.

And for that reason, I would ask that Your Honor grant the wages motion, employee wages motion.

THE COURT: Okay. Before I hear from any other party, I just want to make sure I understand. I have had an opportunity to review the supplemental declaration. So I think I understand the PTO issue and the amounts as it relates to the caps. And I get the thought process behind that.

But I just want some clarity. Is the debtor asking today for a final order with respect to the authority to pay wages and benefits, et cetera?

MS. KIM: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. I understand the request.

Can I hear from the Office of the United States

Trustee?

MR. FOX: Yes, Your Honor. Tim Fox again on behalf of the United States Trustee.

So in reviewing this motion, I initially provided my informal comments which included our standard provisions about payments exceeding the statutory priority caps and, in that colloquy with the debtor, was informed about the nature of those overages and that -- the majority of them -- that the overwhelming majority of those relate to the paid time off benefit. One of the other standard provisions that we routinely see in these wages order is a provision that says notwithstanding any other provision that they not pay accrued paid time off.

But given the circumstances here where state law requires the payment of those amounts and that circumstance falling in these extraordinary times, my office is not objecting to the relief that's being sought today and with respect to do this on a final basis on the first-day rather than doing an interim order and a final order for the reasons the debtors' counsel stated.

It's, again, my understanding, and the supplemental declaration makes this even more clear, that these payments are required under state law and that these individuals that are receiving these payments are going to be faced with difficult times here going forward. And whatever can be done to minimize that impact, given the extraordinary circumstances, is not something that my office believes is improper under the circumstances.

So with the modification that was made to the form of order at my office's request, we have no objection to entry of this order.

THE COURT: Okay. Does any other party wish to be heard? All right.

Ms. Kim, I'd like a little bit more clarity. I am struggling with the proposition that -- I got -- I will be candid. I don't have an issue with the relief that's requested. But I am troubled by the prospect of doing it on a final basis on the first-day. We've talked plenty of times about the challenging circumstances we all face today.

Our local rules specifically provide that, essentially, all orders entered on a first-day are interim.

And I think if I understand the nature of the relief, you are asking for authority to make payments that have been described.

If I enter that order, interim or file, you have the authority to make those payments.

I don't know that I've ever had a situation where it has gotten questioned or unwound at a later point. But I am reluctant as a practical matter to leave any other party in the bankruptcy case that may not have heard about any of this to an emergency appeal -- and I think the appeal deadline, if I'm not mistaken, is fourteen days, so that would be before our second-day hearing -- or a motion for reconsideration.

so I think I'd like some -- a little bit more clarity about why the debtor believes that a final order today is necessary. I appreciate the desire for certainty and closure. I would also note that the relief requested is beyond what would often be approved in this Court, particularly with the lump sums that may exceed the cap and everything. And you've gotten support from -- or lack of opposition from the Office of the United States Trustee and I think as I -- as far as I can tell generally right now support from the lenders for that.

But the concern I have is that a final order today is a bridge too far. I'd like your thoughts.

MS. KIM: Your Honor, I understand. And that is why for all of these other motions that -- for which we're asking for payment to be made that we did ask for -- structure them as in the form of interim orders.

In this one instance, which I understand it is a large sum relative to the other payments that we were contemplating today, as well as the fact that it is the majority of what the -- the initial drawdown during the interim period under the DIP facility.

That said, we believe that subjecting the employees to that uncertainty that might arise even during a short period of time between now and the final hearing will -- in the context of everything else that is happening and the circumstances being faced, will be -- it will cause some consternation and trouble.

And we would like to be able to reassure the employees and the former employees that, regardless of whatever else may happen with respect to the future of this company -- and you have -- Your Honor has heard many times today about the essential nature of some of the services that the debtors had been providing, that regardless of the rest of the uncertainty, that the one thing that is certain is that once this money -- the paychecks go out, that they are their paychecks to cash. And they can do without concern.

THE COURT: Okay. Does anyone else wish to be heard?

MR. FOX: Your Honor, this is Tim Fox again on behalf of the United States Trustee.

In further response, and to elaborate on my prior comment, I took it as styling this as final on the first day didn't affect what the standing practice is in the jurisdiction and is reflected, I believe, in Judge Carey's comments that all orders entered on the first day are, in nature, interim orders, just that this one isn't specifically going to be sought for a final order with additional relief. If that understanding is incorrect, then I apologize for that.

And I understand the debtors' comments now to reflect maybe a larger degree of finality than I had appreciated. So I just wanted to clarify that before any other parties spoke.

But it would be my hope and expectation that, consistent with practice in this district, that, despite the styling of the order, should there be any party that didn't receive the opportunity to be heard today and won't get notice of these cases until the second-day hearing is going to be held, that they'd have the right to come forward with any issues. I don't imagine there would be much in the way of practical issues that exist. But that -- I just wanted to make my comments a little bit more clear on the record.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. Anyone else? All right.

MR. NEIER: Your Honor, it's David Neier. Your Honor, it's David Neier.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. NEIER: I would just point out that we're talking about 129,000 dollars spread over thirty-two employees. It's hardly a princely sum. Yes, it could be a committee issue or something like that. But it's really a -- it's really di minimis when you consider what we're talking about here.

THE COURT: I don't disagree, but I'm still not prepared to do it on a final order. I would take it on an interim. I think experience teaches that it is highly unlikely that these would be challenged. I think, to the extent -- as I said, many of you have been in my court for a long time. While it's highly unlikely that they would be attacked, it's also unlikely that that attack would be well-received.

But I understand the concerns. Ms. Kim I think has laid out the challenges that are faced by these employees and the extraordinary circumstances that they face.

And again, but I'm concerned that an entry of a final order on day one as to this issue would create, frankly, a measure of confusion as evidenced, frankly, by the colloquy with Mr. Fox. If I enter a final order, I think it's final.

And I think your remedy is an appeal and a prompt one.

But the bottom line is this. This debtor is -notwithstanding all of the extraordinary circumstances we're facing, the motion that is before me is pretty typical. And to the extent that there's relief sought in that motion, the amounts that Mr. Neier just touched on and Ms. Kim has dealt with in specifics is not typical, but it's also not unheard of.
We deal many times with amounts that are beyond the caps, often with sales people for commissions, those kind of things.

And so again, I don't -- I'm not troubled by the relief that's requested. And I think that the debtors have carried their burden as to that respect. I just think that the request that the Court on this -- at this hearing, twenty-four hours into the proceeding, request final relief as to really anything is, as I said, a step too far.

So I would be prepared to take the typical approach that we have in prior cases. And I would grant the motion for wages and salaries, all of the relief that's been requested. And the debtor is asking for authority to make those payments prior to the entry of a further order, if one comes at our later hearing in April. And that is precisely what I understand and expect will happen. Those monies will go. And the employees will get their checks.

As to the relief requested, as noted, it is generally pretty standard. And I do find from, one, the Court's long experience, as well as, second, Mr. Mannion's declaration that the -- in the absence of the relief that's requested, I think the debtors' reorganization effort will suffer the risk of immediate and irreparable harm. And I realize that the debtor is in something of a state of limbo because of, again, the circumstances that we face with the COVID-19 pandemic.

But, as I said a few moments ago, if there is a way to keep an operating and functional business alive here for the opportunity to be revived and rebuilt, hopefully once the circumstances pass, this case cries out for that. And as I said, the Court would be prepared to be a willing partner. And I view these payments as being a step in that direction.

So based upon the record before me, I'm satisfied the debtors have carried their burden under applicable provisions to the Bankruptcy Code as well as Bankruptcy Rule 6003. And 1 with the one proviso that the order will be denominated as is 2 our practice as an interim order, the motion is granted. And 3 that order will issue once it's uploaded. 4 Ms. Kim, I think that that was the last of the 5 6 motions. Are there any other items that we need to cover now 7 this afternoon? MS. KIM: No, Your Honor. Thank you. 8 9 I will note that, just to -- for clarity so that 10 there's no surprise later that obviously the -- actually being able to pay out those paychecks will be highly dependent on 11 12 being able to get in the DIP funding. And then even then, there's a little bit of mechanical 13 issues in trying to issue out a thousand-plus paychecks. So 14 it'll take possibly two days before the checks can go out. But 15 our hope is that we can be able to do all of that very 16 17 expeditiously. And I appreciate Your Honor's comments. 18 And with that, I also on behalf of the debtors and my 19 cocounsel very much appreciate Your Honor's attention to these matters on such an expedited basis. And I believe that it will 20 21 be a major step forward in being able to make sure that the 22 debtors are able to maximize value of their assets and try to protect whatever they can protect in the state of Alaska. 23
