Public radio is an essential tool for public health. Whether it's information about a local support meeting, a tsunami, a pandemic or the local breast cancer screening options, public radio amplifies messaging and underscores its value for the public good. Underwriting with the reach of CoastAlaska has helped SEARHC communicate important changes in our healthcare systems and update communities with current best practices. If the message of your organization is like a seed that you hope will grow in your audience’s mind, then CoastAlaska is the wind that scatters it to the fertile ground where it will thrive.

University of Alaska Southeast
Alison Krein, Creative Manager

As a regional university, we depend on a strong connection to our community. Underwriting public radio allows UAS to reach potential students, parents, and adult learners; it helps us to tell our story and to keep UAS vital in the minds of the public. I recommend underwriting public radio with CoastAlaska because their audiences are loyal listeners who value the same things we do: curiosity, education, and investment in their communities and the world.
