Dear Friends;

But this country is far prettier than yours. We have a thick covering of snow on everything, the temperature is about 20° and has been as low as 8° .

We have a large glass sunporch on our house where we keep our eggs, apples, etc. The eggs froze so hard, Mary couldn't break one with a hammer. They thawed out in about an hour.

The slide in Juneau wasn't as bad as they first reported it to be, tho it was tragic enough.

Juneau is built against a hill, not just rolling land but gigantic mountains of hard rock covered with shale and loose dirt. The rainfall last month was over 25. inches which is a great deal for any country.

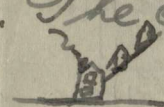

The water ran off the mountain in rivers and seeping through the mud to bed rock it loosened the shale and mud, causing the slide. Four houses were completely wrecked. Three others were badly damaged, so much so that they will have to be wrecked. Nine people survived the slide while fifteen others in it were killed.

The slide started about 800 feet above the street level and slid to the street heaping debris 20 feet high against a cement building. Logs, huge rocks, and tons of mud were piled high across the main street.

One can't imagine the force of such a slide. I'll try to draw you one of those hard to understand drawings of the slide.

- (D) slope of hill above houses

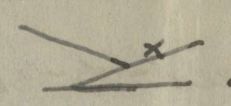

The bottom house was dug into the ground and built of cement. The cement was crushed to small rock.

Bathtubs were mashed flat. Pipes were twisted into all shapes.

One miner heard the slide coming ran out of the house, was half-carried by the mud to safety. Others running out were swept to the ground. The daughter of the family owning the lower house was ~~not~~ preparing to take a bath. The lights went out just before the slide hit. She stepped into the hall to see if all the lights were out or if her globe had burned out. The slide hit and threw her through a window to the ground and swept her to the safety of a too-scared-to-run bystander who gave her his overcoat and rushed her into a store. Her folks were killed.

Fire broke out following an explosion about 5 a.m. the following morning and all hope was lost. 45 hours later a rescuer heard a child crying. Not believing his ears he called another worker who knew the 3½-year-old girl. They talked to her and when we came off shift the miners went to her rescue. It took three hours to uncover the mass of twisted walls. She was brought out alive and apparently all right, to the cheers of thousands of onlookers. She died 2 hours later from shock, and injuries. Her legs were beamed badly, and a crushed arm would require amputation, so it was no doubt for the best that she had to go, tho the town mourned the loss.

Every time our babes turned over in bed we thought it was our house going, tho it's almost impossible for any slide to effect us. We live on a hill like this. . The hills near us are solid rock and this picture makes it look that these hills slide into each other, but they don't, they go by each other.

I'm still crazy about this country. Wages are good, the work is the easiest I've ever done and the bosses don't drive you. What you don't do today you do tomorrow. I work in the machine shop and bit shop.

You fix about 8 machines a day and 6 hoses. Some days only 4 machines come in - those days
you take it easy. Bit grinding, we grind about 70 a day. When the work is done we take it easy.
Time goes fast. Pay through noon hours. We don't really loaf but we take it easy. We have to stay there in case more comes in.

We ride 5 miles to work via electric train in the mine tunnel,
on company time, which takes about half hour. We ride out on our own time. The mine runs 24 hours a day.

There is need for carpenters here,
and if a fellow can afford to build a few houses, he can clean up. Houses were scarce before the slide. Now about 50 houses have been condemned so there's need for many new ones. They sell easily here. Rents are ^{$}30⁰⁰ up, and the houses aren't modern.

The strike has made the ~~houses~~^{stores} look bare, tho we have plenty of grub for awhile. We're going to get 1/2 Reindeer tomorrow at 10¢ a pound, while beef is about 40¢.

Eggs are 70¢ a dozen, Butter 65¢ lb

Must close now, but first I want to say I don't know how I can thank you for the kindness you bestowed up on my family, and I do, how I appreciated your sending me the pictures of the babies. By some ill luck I forgot my big photos and had none, I'd written Mary for them but she failed to send them and then a letter from you and those photos. Thanks lots.

Bye - write whenever you get time,

Sincerely

George L. Webb
and Family.
